When the captured cars were halted, Engineer Scott and the fireman were marched back to the express car, where the robbers made a demand on Messenger Paige to open his door. He refused. "By God, we'll shoot the engineer and fireman if you don't open in a hurry," said one o' the robbers, the taller of the two, while the other masked man held two dynamite bombs up to view in the clear moonlight and threatened to blow the express car to pieces unless it was opened at once. Still Paige hesitated and some shots were fired through the glass door at him, one of which graxed his temple and filled it with broken bits of glass. The messenger finally opened the door. One robber then covered the messenger and engineer and fireman with his rifle, while the other searched for coin. He found three sacks, one containing $200 in silver and two small sacks of gold.

Plea for Clemency. Among those arraigned in the Court of General Sessions, Part I., before Judge Cowing this morning, was James E. Cowan, a bookkeeper, of 311 West One Hundred and Thirty-third street, As was told in "The Evening World" last Tuesday, Cowan was arrested on that day at his home upon a bench warrant, charging him with forgery in the second degree. On that day he pleaded guilty. He had forged the name of John C. Alten to a check in payment for the premium on a policy for insurance. The check was for $40, and it was handed to the Sun Fire Insurance Company, of 54 Pine street, Cowan receiving $12 as a commission.

Pine street, Cowan receiving $12 as a commission.

On the day of his arrest, he told how he had committed the crime to get money to buy food for his wife and little girl, who were literally starving. He had been out of work for a long time, and although brought up as a gentleman, he could not see his loved ones suffering for food. So, in desperation, he signed Alten's name to the check.

Insurance officials and others, having sent letters to Judge Cowing, begging for clemency, in addition to a strong plea from the victims of the forgery, sentence was suspended.
